Street railways may cross others diagonally or at right angles.

Section 29—Passenger railway companies heretofore or hereinafter incorporated under general or special laws are hereby empowered to sell or lease their property or franchise to motor power companies now or hereafter incorporated under laws authorizing such companies to lease the franchises of passenger railway companies.

An act for the incorporation and regulation IBY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.] LONDON, January 18 .- (Copyright.)-It was expected that the Times would make a or more persons for the construction and opera great fight over the admissibility of the tion of passenger railways for public use in the great fight over the admissibility of the plan of campaign, but to the general sur-prise the Attorney General informed the amissioners this morning that he would not, under the evidence therein, at any rate as an independent branch of the case. would say, of the termination of the Times' case, and the sanguine spirits are blithely prophesying that all will be over by the time Parliament meets the 21st of February. Several land agents had been examined before luncheon time to-day, and everybody felt good and happy at the phenomenal progress which was being made, when Mr. Reid, one of the counsel for a majority of the Irish members, gave all a cold chill by suddenly jumping up and displaying a bulletin bill of a Tory daily newspaper upon which, in big fat letters, were the words, "The league murder ring," "Confession in open court." In view of President Hannen's appeal to the press on Wednesday this thing was in the worst possible taste, but it might well have been suffered to pass unnoticed. It will now have to be dealt with and the result will be worth nothing, for the proprietor of the offending journal is a rabid Tory, whom the Queen made a Knight last year.

The afternoon was occupied with the examination and cross-examination of Captain Plunkett, a Divisional Magistrate by grace of Balfour Pasha. Plunkett is an un-wholesome-looking creature, blue-eyed, bloated, carbuncle-faced, whose appearance in the witness box caused a profound sensation in the court. His evidence was dominated by violent hatred of the league and everybody and everything connected with it, so violent in truth as to spoil whatever value it might otherwise have possessed from the Times' point of view.

Captain Plunkett testified that he had heard Father O'Connor, the parish priest of Firies, denounce at a cattle sale a farmer named Curtin, and that a week later the farmer was murdered. Father O'Connor did not name Curtin, but he alluded to him in such a way that there could be no mistake as to whom he meant.

A TROTTING WONDER

Hickok Says He Will Bring a Flyer From California

TO MATCH PRINCE WILKES.

Some Interesting News Received in Pittsburg Yesterday.

JACK DEMPSEY AND M'CAFFREY. An Important Objection to the New Pool-

Selling Bill. GENERAL SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

Mr. J. A. McKelvey, the well-known horseman of this city, received some very interesting and instructive news regarding trotting horses and people interested in trotters yesterday. It may be stated that "Reddy" McKelvey, as he is familiarly called, is almost daily in correspondence with the most prominent people connected with the trotting track. Besides being a first auctioneer at horse sales he is possessed of useful knowledge concerning men and horses connected with the leading tracks. Yesterday afternoon Mr. McKelvey smiled, he even seemed heartily pleased when he accosted the writer as follows:

We will have a bona fide race for Prince Wilkes sure now. I have just received a letter from Crit Davis, who has the Prince and the balance of his stable in Kentucky. The letter goes on to say that Hickock, who is in California, is coming East with a trotter that can be matched against Prince Wilkes or any other rotting horse in America. From what I can learn the intimation of a great match is genuine, However, Mr. Davis informs me that Prince Wilkes will be ready for action when the time

READY FOR ANYBODY. Mr. Davis says more. He gives me to under-stand that the Prince will not only be likely to trim the Western visitors up in the East, but that he will probably be taken West and will there score some victories. To beat champions on their own heath is a great honor, and Prince Wilkes is a likely horse to do it. It may seem strange, however, when I say that in his letter Mr. Davis tells me that the famous Prince is now running loose on the grass, and that nobody at first sight would be prepared to offer more for him than about $80. However, I am told by Mr. Davis himself that the horse is all right and was never in better condition than he is now. Undoubtedly there will be a great match race if Hickock fulfills his offer. I know that the Prince Wilkes party will be prepared to make a match against anybody. I am also inclined to think that Mr. Hickock will find others who will be ready to accommodate him. I also received another letter from a well-known borsenan, continued Mr. McKelvey. This letter amuses me, and doubtless will amuse many other patrons of trotting meetings when they know the color of my hair. John Splan, who will undoubtedly be immortalized as an author shortly has written me from Chi-

Hoping that French pools may be easier to beat next year, I remain your friend, as long as tall the state of beat next year, I remain your friend, as long as your money lasts.

John Splan.

Everybody who reads the above letter who knows anything at all about trotting tracks will at once recognize the genial, humorous and honest spirit of John Splan. Comment is unnecessary to those who know him, and to those who don't know him only his personal appearance and company would give a correct estimate. He is progressing well in the work of publishing his book, and it will be before the publishing the spirit of the spirit of the spirit of the publishing his book, and it will be before the publisher or long.

other there is much conjecture. At pre-ent and for some time past California has been noted for like phenonmenal trotters have not been heard of. Of course Sunoul, by Electioneer, made a of. Of course Sunoul, by Electioneer, made a mark of 2:18 last year as a two year. This year the youngster may be considerably faster, but it is hardly likely that Sinoul will be ritted against Prince Wilkes in a match. Certainly Western people produce wonders now and then. Guy Wilkes, another good trotter, is out on the slope somewhere, but certainly there will be plenty of money for the Prince against Guy. It is also possible that a trotter has been kept on the Q.T. to move Prince Wilkes. If this is so the race will still be more interesting. Stamboul is also coming East and he may be the flyer.

Jack Wannop and Others Deny That Sullivny Was Drank. NEW YORK, January 18. - Jack Wanner, telegraphs to the World from Boston this card: Please deny for me that John L. B. Lemon Talks About the New Poolselling Bill. Hon. M. B. Lemon, the well-known local nember of the Legislature, returned from Harrisburg yesterday. During a conversation on the proposed amendment of the poolselling law

"So far the amendment bill has not caused much excitement, chiefly because there is a prevailing opinion that it is a bill to benefit one prevailing opinion that it is a bill to benefit one man more than anybody else. The bill is a Philadelphia measure pure and simple, and is inferior to the bill drafted in this city. The Philadelphia measure will benefit Frank Herdic more than anybody else, simply because he has the selling at almost all the tracks. The proposed amendment will limit poolselling to the tracks. Therefore Herdic will be the great gainer. Of course, there is a general desire to amend the old law, but nowadays people want new laws that will reach beyond individuals and distribute privileges or benefits all round. Certainly it is possible to amend the propose I amendment bill, but it would be better to have the entire case presented fairly at first. The Philadelphia people will have to see that there are other places interested than Philadelphia."

The amendment bill will be introduced next week, and it is probable that important amendments to it will be moved, not only by Pittsburgers, but by others, when the right time

From these remarks it will be gathered that, netwithstanding John B. Day's ultimatum in the Johnson matter, Kansas City will not lay down its hands at the strong game of bluff that is being made. It is proposed to carry the matter through the mill. It is understood now that Columbus has signed Johnson. Johnson telegraphed to Mr. Day and asked his opinion of his (Johnson's) case. Mr. Day, who, as a member of the Arbitration Committee, will be called upon to take action upon the case, did not seem to recognize the delicacy of his position, and telegraphed back that Johnson was as free as the wind and could sign when and where he pleased.

Jack Dempsey and his genial manager, Mr. McAdow, were shown the above dispatch last evening, and the former, without any hesitation, made the following reply:
"Certainly I will meet McCaffrey at the place named if his offer is accepted by the club. Of course every contest there is to a finish. I want no percentage business, and if I lose I want nothing; if I will want the entire purse, I will fight McCaffrey at catch weight, and that will be a great advantage to him. East Liverpool Waking Up. There is now little doubt but what East Liv-erpool and Steubenville, O., will have a baseball club in the Tri-State League next season. was made in Hamilton yesterday to raise the amount. Only $200 was subscribed, and it was thought unsafe to go ahead with this sum. No formal application has been made for the Hamilton vacancy. Two Cincinnati players are looking on with interest at Cleveland's fight for Pitcher Sprague. Minneapolis claims a transfer of franchise holds the Chicago Maroons' reserved players. Cleveland begs to differ, and if Cleveland wins its case such a decision in its favor will free Fulton and Keogan, who are claimed by Morton under precisely similar circumstances. Race Problem. (SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.) INDIANAPOLIS, January 18 .- Little inerest was caused by the stories printed some days ago alleging that Mr. Blaine could not get into the Cabinet because once upon a time Mrs. Blaine had grossly affronted Mrs. Harrison, since which time the two ladies had not spoken, but the matter seems to have excited so much attention throughout the country that what may be called a semiofficial statement as to it has been given out through a friend of the Harrisons. It is substantially a denial of the truth of the story, although it is admitted that the relations between Mrs. Harrison and Mrs.

Blaine have never been cordial. Mrs. Blaine, when Mrs. Harrison first went to Washington, treated Mrs. Harrison about as she treated all the "new ladies" who made an appearance in Washington society, with a good deal of disdain. Mrs. Harrison is of a nature to receive that sort of treatment with cheerful resignation, but not with thanks. She found herself very comfortable at Washington in spite of the cold shoulder turned toward her by the wife of the Secretary of State, and she ignored Mrs. Blaine about as Mrs. Blaine ignored her. Mrs. Harrison is a true Western girl, and if people don't want to associate with her they needn't, and she can get along without them. NO OPEN OUARKEL. She met Mrs. Blaine occasionally in Washington society, but the acquaintance of the two ladies never progressed any fur-ther than the implied limits which Mrs. Blaine herself had fixed. There were no affronts direct or indirect from either side to the other and the matter of her probable social relations toward Mrs. Blaine had not been considered by Mrs. Harrison until brought up by the publication of a lew days ago. In any event the relations of the two ladies would have had no influence upon the chances of Mr. Blaine for the Cabinet. Mrs. Harrison has from the very start determined that she would keep her part of the administration entirely clear from politics. Her invariable reply to the hundreds who have written soliciting her influence for some appointment has been that she had nothing to do with politics or offices. So nothing to do with politics or offices. So far as the social obligations imposed upon her by the official position of her husband are concerned they will be scrupulously fulfilled without regard to personal feelings. If she has any personal likes or dislikes they will be exercised outside of the range of her official social duties. It is the same with the wine question, the bustle question and a score of other questions upon one side or another of which her influence is continually being sought.

WINE AND BUSTLES.

"It was not I that the people elected President," she put it once "but the General. I don't propose to set up at the White House as a dictator of manners or customs. If he wants wine on the table, or if it seems them, they can do it, I'm sure, and if others don't want them, why they needn't. It's none of my business either way." The dancing question is another about which the women reformers have been trying to worry the wife of the President-elect, but she won't have anything to do with that Cabinet possibility, who has come here upon much the same sort of an invitation as that which brought John F. Plummer few days ago, made his call upon the President-elect this afternoon, and had quite a long conference with him. Although Colonel Buck was accompanied here by Dr. C. W. is disposed of we cannot hope for the political peace or the material prosperity that we desire. As we see it, the only possible way of disposing of the race question is by the division of the white wote, now concentrated practically upon the Democratic side. Gen-eral Harrison can, we believe, bring about such a division of the white vote, if he acts as he must act if he fully understands the situation in which we are placed. The great thing to be done is to use the utmost care in making appointments and pick out the very best men in the communities. There are plenty of able men whose selection for Federal offices would strengthen the party vastly all through the South. They are not all Republicans, but the lines should not be drawn too closely between the parties in this matter. If they are not alighted because on the race issue they have sided against us, it will make them our friends and aid us greatly by convincing the white people of the South that we are first for the country and for the party afterward." Dr. Arnold was an enthusiastic Buck man, when it came to the South in the Cabinet, and that was probably one reason why he and Mr. Locke did not call upon the President-elect at the same time as Colonel Buck. They wanted to call when they

LOVE AT THE WASHTUB.

Bride in Very Short Order.

A Rockhampton, Queensland, Australia letter to the New York Sun, says: Marriageable young women are in great demand in this part of the Queen's dominions. The sexes in this colony are in the proportion of 125 males to 88 females. The towns however, retain more than their share of the fair sex. and in the sugar planting districts there is a deplorable dearth of women. Nearly all the land owners and large planters are married, but most of the whites in their employ are bachelors, and, what is worse, many of the poor fellows haven't a chance to change their condition if they wish to. The result is that whenever a nice white girl goes into the interior on the plantations she has to get

Colonel Buck says himself that he has no idea that his name is being seriously considered by the President-elect, and intimates that he is very well contented with his present office, that of Clerk of the United States Circuit Court for Georgia. He thinks that if any outhern man goes into the Cabinet it is likely to be Mahone, because the appointment of Mahone would, he thinks, make Virginia pretty safe for the Republicans Colonel Buck was reticent as to his mission

A remarkable case of sudden and almost unpresent the country of the coun unpremeditated matrimony occurred on a plantation near Winton a few weeks ago. A planter had been to Rockhampton, and here engaged a strapping, good-looking girl to assist his wife in her household duties. After she had been in her new home for several days she took her washtub out of doors one morning to do the family washing. While hard at work, with soapwashing. After a while the young man owned up that it was a case of love at first sight as far as he was concerned and he popped the question without any ado. The girl said she was willing if her mistress would in-dorse him as a worthy young man. That lady thought it would be a good match and said so, and a quarter of an hour later the brand-new lovers, in their working clothes were footing it three miles away to the house of a magistrate, where the knot was legally tied in short order. The bride fin-ished her washing in the afternoon and that evening she transferred herself to the home of the squatter which she now adorns, ap-parently as happy a woman as there is in A great many people do not like this climate, for we are 20 degrees nearer the equator than the residents of New York.

Society Did Not Attempt to Explain. 300 From the Boston Globe. ] One interesting case, which Prof. Royce arents in St. Louis and told them of it, mentioning the fact that there was a long scratch on his sister's face, of which he had known nothing. His father laughed and told him his mind was wandering, but his mother nearly fainted on hearing the scratch referred to. Sho told them that no one knew anything about the mark on the face of the deceased, as she (the mother) had accidentally made it in performing some little duty of love to the corpse and had afterward covered it with powder, so that it was not visible. She had never told anyone about it, and was sure that her son had actually seen his deceased sister. Prof.

How Some of the Delusions in Sun Pictures are Produced. Photographic Review, 1 Another novel trick was shown recently in a photograph reproduced by a prominent trade journal, which represented the photographer, seated at a table, playing chess with himself seated on the opposite side of the table, while he himself stood up in the background looking at his two selves playing. The figures were all on the negative, which was produced by three successive exposures of the plate, parts thereof being masked each time by a black velvet shutter. Still another trick is that by which a person who liked that sort of thing may appear to be photographed riding upon a flying goose or a fish, or any other desired style of ridiculous locomotion. This is done by the subject holding upon his lap a huge piece of white or sky-tinted card, with the fanciful figure upon it. His face appears above the upper edge of the card, and seems, in the picture, joined to the funny little body mounted on the goose or fish. The statue picture is made by about the same device.
